Ready for a CE Challenge?

If you are experiencing boredom at work or it feels as though you have hit a professional plateau, you may want to consider participating in our CE learning challenge.

During the months of August and September we are challenging librarians of every stripe to make a commitment to their own professional development by spending (1) one hour a week learning more about a topic or skill that interests them. Are you up for the CE challenge? Are you ready to spend (1) hour a week on professional reading, attending a live or recorded webinar, or completing a self-paced online course or tutorial?

If you're ready, you may want to begin by reflecting on your personal career goals, then identify a topic or skill that you help move you closer to meeting your personal goals and finally set aside time so you can focus on learning without distractions.

Videoconference: Alaska Summer Reading Wrap-Up

August 14th at 4 pm

Enquiring minds want to know about your library's summer reading program. How did you implement the Build a Better World theme into your program? What sort of special events were held at your library during summer reading?

During this hour long video conference, summer reading librarians will have an opportunity to share tips, tricks and best practices.

Alaska libraries wishing to join this OPEN video conference should e-mail Video Conferencing Services at ua-owlvideo@alaska.edu.
